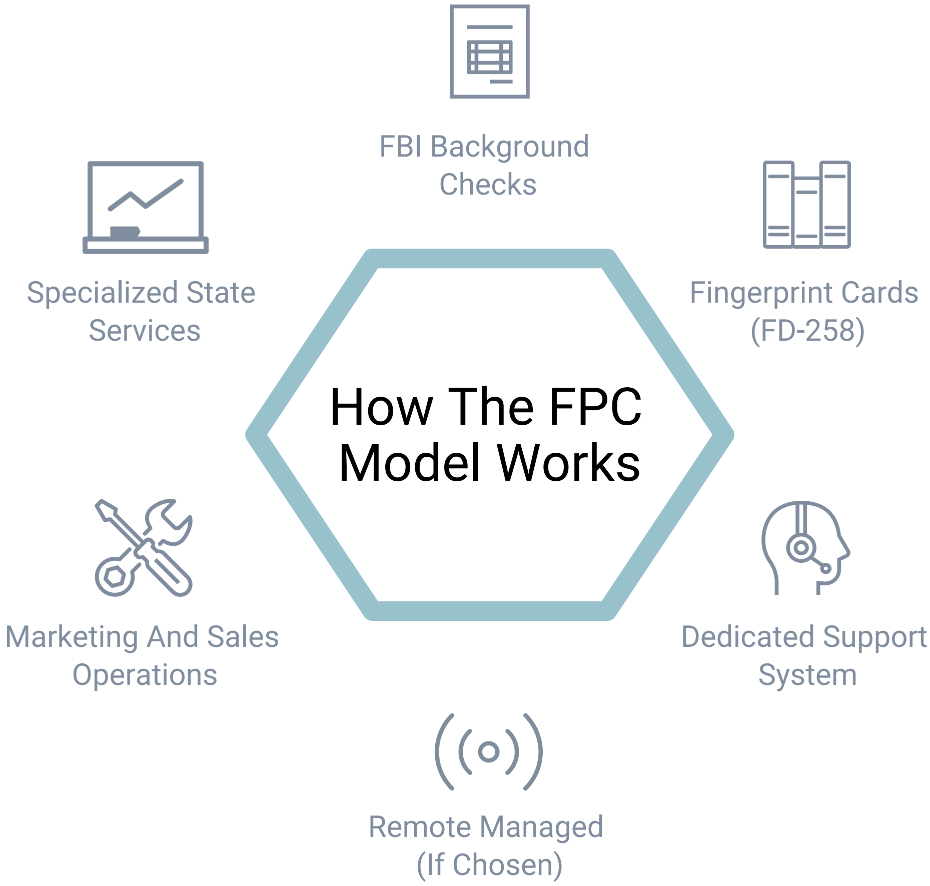
Invest In An Essential Business That Offers Fingerprinting Services

How Small Fingerprinting Businesses Generate Six-Figure Run Rates Recurring



Today there are countless ways to leverage the growing biometric industry by creating small brick-and-mortar/mobile fingerprinting businesses that operate in any state with no regulations or legal requirements.

Yet, along with its growing industry, the biometric space has also become to operate in a vacuum with a high demand for fingerprinting services and a low supply of businesses to fulfill such services. With an emphasis on standard operating procedures we license to investors/clients, a network of other business owners, and our matched vendors and software to use, we can help facilitate your financial success in fingerprinting.

Within this program that licenses information and services we've gathered to build such businesses, a return on investment is just about guaranteed or we potentially buy it back from you.

For more proof of why this industry is growing and how our program works, it's inevitable that this offer will run out and be closed to the public within the near future.

Why the fingerprinting industry is growing

High Demand And Low Supply
Since circa 2019, fingerprinting services have been growing in popularity due to stricter regulations in employee hiring processes. This demand has also been exacerbated due to the 2020 pandemic due to an increase in remote work. However, the number of fingerprinting service-based businesses has decreased overall by approximately 25%.

Growth In Employee Verification And Vetting
Employee verification and background check screenings have been dramatically increased due to the increased technology used in performing background checks and biometric-based identity verifications.

Growth In Remote work
Due to the 2020 pandemic, an increase in remote-based work and hiring in has seen to increase across all 50 states by an approximate number of 42%

Reduction In Regulations
Fingerprinting-based background checks have historically been done by governments, police stations, and contract-won companies solely. Due to increased demand for services nationwide, these restrictions as a while have been both federally lifted and partially lifted from participating states.

Increase In Software Abilities
Due to an increase in demand for services, companies with liquidity and advanced development teams have tried to capitalize on this industry growth by developing new biometric capture software and hardware. However, the missing link to this ecosystem is now the physical locations and businesses to purchase this software and hardware in order to perform services.

Conclusion - How You Can Invest

Here's the offer...

You invest one time anywhere from $15,000 - $70,000

The investment size correlates to the amount of revenue share we assign.

You do no work in the operations of the location unless you want to.

We handle the operations, marketing, hardware, and software needed to grow.

You make recurring revenue off your one-time investment for the life of the business.

Why are we doing this?

Our company, Fingerprinting Classes value the network of locations we are building more than the revenue generated from it for two reasons.

To bid for contracts and higher-level partnerships.

To create our own recurring revenue business without having to travel.
